WHEN YOU APPLY FOR MEDICAID

Medicaid “looks back” five years into your financial history to determine what you have done with your assets. Persons who transfer countable resources at less than fair market value within 5 years prior to application for Medicaid are presumed to have disposed of these resources for the purpose of establishing Medicaid eligibility. Depending on the amount and timing of transfer, there is a waiting period to become eligible for Medicaid.

Your income and resources must be verified by the following means:

- General: Proof of age, marriage/divorce, death certificate of spouse, copy of will, Medicare card, social security card, health insurance card.
- Income verification: Copy of social security check, long-term care insurance, pension and other income.
- Resource verification: Deposits and withdrawals from financial accounts for 5 years. Savings accounts, checking accounts, investment accounts, life insurance policies, stocks, bonds, CDs, IRAs, past 5 years of income tax returns, annuity accounts, deed to burial plot, copy of irrevocable funeral contract.
